GEORGE NOVAK, 45, narrowly escaped death when a truck overturned on his small foreign car on a viaduct in Seattle Friday. Police said the truck, driven by Howard T. Nye, might have crushed the car except that the cab was held up by the concrete pillar and drainpipe at left. The truck overturned as Nye tried to avoid hitting the small car, which cut in front of him to take an off ramp from the viaduct. Novak was hospitalized. (AP Wirephoto)

Lie Is Given 'Rubber Stamp' Congress Label

WASHINGTON (AP)—The notion that Congress is a "rubber stamp" for President Johnson has been challenged by one of the real rulers of Capitol Hill—Rep. Wilbur D. Mills.

Mills, Arkansas Democrat who is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, shelved two administration proposals last week, illustrating a fact that the public sometimes forgets.

In Congress, the chairmen of the committees call the shots, not the President.

Mills put aside administration bills that would have liberalized trade with Communist nations in Eastern Europe and revamped state unemployment insurance systems.

"I am not for it," he said, in announcing he would not even introduce the trade bill.

"Federal standards are out," he said in disclosing that his committee had cut the heart out of the administration's unemployment insurance bill and would write a new one following suggestions made by the states.

Another illustration of a chairman's power was furnished recently by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., when he refused to call up an administration-backed bill already approved by his Education and Labor Committee that would permit on-site picketing by construction unions.

Powell's stand demonstrated that a determined chairman can even override the speaker of the House.

Chairman get their broad powers from the House rules, but power must be wielded boldly to be effective.

Mills commands support in the Ways and Means Committee through a brilliant combination of political skill, legislative acumen and knowledge of his subject.

Powell plays rough. "Remember, I have to sign your travel vouchers," he tells members repeatedly to forestall any attempts to override him.

Disputes Mark Arbitration Bill Hearing Friday

LANSING (AP) — A bill to require compulsory arbitration of labor disputes involving police and firemen produced oral fireworks Friday.

During the day-long hearing before the Senate Labor Committee, senators were raising their voices at witnesses and witnesses were arguing back.

The hearing was interrupted three times as senators were required to go to the floor to vote. The location was changed once, but stubborn witnesses insisted on being heard until after 6 p.m.

The municipalities represented were against the idea of compulsory arbitration, as was Robert Howlett, chairman of the State Labor Mediation Board.

Another opponent was Charles Rehms, political science professor at the University of Michigan.

"It was tried for six years in New Jersey," Rehms said, "and then the Legislature there reversed itself and repealed the law."

But representatives of the rank-and-file—the working police patrolmen and firemen—were solidly for the bill.

Sen. Sander Levin, D-Berkley, committee chairman, said a vote probably would not be taken until next Tuesday or Thursday on reporting the bill out of committee.

The much-amended measure already has passed the House.

"There were some 40 sponsors of this bill in the house," declared Simon Chapple, representing the Michigan State Fire Fighters Association. "It passed the House nicely and they can't all be wrong."

"We want the right of appeal," amended Carl Parsell, president of the Detroit Police Officers Association, representing the patrolmen. "We need someone who can sit down and look at the problems that confront us."

"We are here because we feel we aren't getting a fair shake," said Edward Lewand, representing the Fraternal Order of Police. "The fair thing to do would be to have a third party sit down with us and look at both sides."

Levin wouldn't guess whether the bill would be reported out. Legislative observers said the bill was too hot to be allowed to die in committee and predicted it would be reported out—without recommendation—to allow the arguments to continue on the Senate floor.

CEDAR SPRINGS (AP)—City councilman Howard Riggie has been named city manager of Cedar Springs, succeeding Eugene Edgcomb who resigned, effective June 1.

Dr. Leary Says LSD Use Is Out Of Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary, a pioneer experimenter with the drug LSD, says there is more danger in a cocktail lounge than in the hallucinogenic drug.

Leary, a former Harvard University lecturer, acknowledged the hazards of LSD's improper use at a Senate hearing Friday, but suggested strict licensing could use the drug for "spiritual growth, pursuit of knowledge."

Appearing before the Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, Leary said the use of LSD is growing out of control and estimated that "one-third of our college students are experimenting with this drug."

Heavy use of the drug by young people has provoked a crisis, he said, but he called it a "crisis of challenge" rather than of peril.

And he suggested that universities be authorized to give laboratory courses on the use of LSD under strict supervision. He predicted this "will end the indiscriminate use of LSD."

Leary said: "You definitely

Sit-In Marathon At Chicago U Is Now Token Size

CHICAGO (AP) — A token force kept a sit-in marathon going today in the University of Chicago's administration building.

The students were protesting the university's policy of supplying class rankings to draft boards if the students consent.

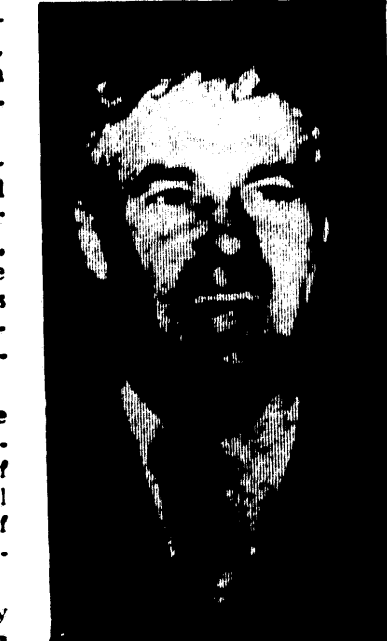

As the demonstration droned into its third full day, a band of 25 men and women lounged in first and second floor lobbies of the six-story administration building.

Fred Egan, a sophomore from Alpena, Mich., said the overnight shift was on duty from 12 midnight to 9 a.m., CDT, and plans were made for fresh groups to come in during the day.

The demonstration fell off to token size Friday night after the participants went to the home of President George W. Beadle.

But President Beadle was not home Friday night to receive the message, so a declaration outlining the students' stand was slipped under his front door.

Moments earlier, most of the 350 students who had occupied and controlled the administration building since Wednesday fled across the darkened campus.

go out of your mind" while under the drug's influence. But he said that to the vast majority of the young people using LSD, it may mean "opening up the mind, beauty, perhaps religious revelations."

Bethlehem May Create Source For Dolomite

GOULD CITY — This village just off U. S. 2 between Blaney Park and Naubinway is the newest potential boom town in the Upper Peninsula with report that Bethlehem Steel Co. is exploring the feasibility of creating a dolomite quarry at Pt. Patterson.

Pt. Patterson is south of here 10 miles on the Northern Lake Michigan shore. The area has been on the State of Michigan's list of potential sites for future state parks. There is no commercial development in the area now, but it has a recreation area on the beach that gives a view of the Beaver Island group to the south.

Marshall Post of Bethlehem Steel Co. said that the company had no comment at this time on reports that it is examining a dolomite deposit at Pt. Patterson with a view to development of a commercial quarry there to supply stone for its steel making.

Bethlehem has a steel mill at Buffalo, N. Y., and a new finishing mill at East Chicago, which is expected to be developed into a steel producing facility. It rolls steel billets at its plant there now.

For the past 10 years Bethlehem has been a partner in the Presque Isle Corp., which has a stone quarry and plant between Rogers City and Alpena on the shore of Lake Huron in Lower Michigan.

Bethlehem also buys stone from Inland Lime & Stone Co., which has a large high calcium limestone quarry and stone plant at Port Inland about 12 air miles west of Pt. Patterson on the shore of Lake Michigan. The other big steel industry stone quarries on the southern shore of the Upper Peninsula are those of U. S. Steel Corp. at Cedarville, east of St. Ignace, and of the Drummond Dolomite Co. (Reiss Coal Co.) on Drummond Island in the St. Mary's River.

All these quarries produce dolomite except Inland, which quarries limestone.

Work is starting on the exploratory drilling of the dolomite deposit at Pt. Patterson to define the area and depth of the deposit. The Simmons Woods area of the Blaney Park property owned by Stewart Earle of Hermansville is involved in the project and several other private properties are reported to have been optioned for the study.

The stone would be moved by lake carrier from the Pt. Patterson quarry. If one were developed, this presents some problems as the area is one where a long dock to deep water or dredging to cut a channel through a rock shelf for closer approach to the shore would be needed.

A pile driver has been in use between Cozy and Birch Points in Lake Michigan, presumably in connection with the quarry project.

The economic development potential of a major quarry at Pt. Patterson would be large for this western Mackinac County area, which relies now chiefly upon recreation, wood production and commercial fishing for its income.

The Inland Lime & Stone Co. quarry nearby is an operation which employs 400 workers and which is a major industrial support of nearby Gulliver and especially of Manistique.

Abitibi Workers Reject Contract

ALPENA (AP) — Striking union members rejected recommendations of their bargaining leaders Friday and turned down 135-108 a proposed contract with Abitibi Corp.

It was the second contract rejection by members of International Woodworkers of America, Local 4280. Negotiators had reached tentative agreement on the proposal Thursday.

Some 320 union members struck Abitibi May 1. The firm makes wood and paper products.

Building Strike Trial Accords Are Achieved

By The Associated Press

Construction workers across Lower Michigan reached tentative contract agreements Friday that could restore activity to millions of dollars worth of idled building projects.

An operating engineers union agreed on a proposal with the Associated General Contractors of Detroit. The union has some 2,000 members in a seven-county area.

And three Laborers Union locals tentatively came to terms with contractors in four Detroit-area counties.

But agreement was still lacking in strikes by carpenters in the Saginaw Valley area and by Laborers and carpenters in a 13-county area of northern Lower Michigan.

The agreements, which will depend on ratification votes by union members, brought hopes of work resumption on such huge projects as the multimillion dollar expansion of Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The southwest Michigan walk-out, which started May 1 after a contract expired, tied up a reported $200 million in new buildings.

W.A. Reinke, a federal mediator, announced the proposed agreement at Kalamazoo, following a six-hour bargaining session. Terms were not disclosed pending a ratification vote set for Monday.

Stanley Veighley, labor relations manager for the Detroit chapter of Associated General Contractors, said the union agreed to request its members to return to jobs in the seven counties Monday. A ratification vote would be taken later in the week, he said. Terms of the proposal were not made public.

Astronauts Take Physicals Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—

Gemini 9 astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan had a four-hour appointment with doctors today to make certain they are physically and mentally fit for their rendezvous and space walk mission.

Stafford, 35-year-old Air Force major, and Cernan, 32-year-old Navy lieutenant commander, were to finish with the medicals about 1 p.m. and then huddle with Gemini officials to discuss all phases of the planned three-day flight.

The Gemini 9 doubleheader launching is to start at 11 a.m. Tuesday when an Atlas rocket boosts an Agena satellite into orbit. A Titan 2 is to propel the

Inflation Still Feared Despite Business Slip

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Top industry and Johnson administration officials have agreed that the galloping rate of business growth will slow down in the next seven months.

This consensus emerged Friday after more than 100 industrialists met with Cabinet officials and Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, at the spring meeting of the Business Council.

Other leading topics during the day-long closed sessions included the current auto sales lag and the sinking stock market.

But most talked about was the threat of inflation. Ackley told the businessmen that "some slowing down is already evident and welcome."

But it remains uncertain, he said, whether the production rise will be slowed to a rate that is sustainable without serious inflationary hazards and, he implied, without a tax increase.

Other signs of economic slowdown, he told newsmen, include some drop in food prices, a dip in retail sales, and some curtailment of industry's plans for plant and equipment investment.

Questioned whether the slowdown might go so far as to become a recession, Ackley said, "My anticipations don't include that possibility, barring an end to the war in Viet Nam."

Sound Alarm

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) — Don Nelson was awakened Friday by the sound of his garage door opening and closing.

He investigated and found his electronic garage door opener was missing from his car.

Nelson called police. They arrested two youths, ages 16 and 17, in a car parked in an alley nearby. They had the electronic door opener.

"They thought it was a transistor radio and were trying to get it to work," police explained.

U.S. Loses 347 Planes In Five Year Viet Fight

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that 243 American planes have been shot down over North Viet Nam since air attacks on North Viet Nam, up to last Wednesday.

The announcement of plane losses came as the war in Viet Nam slackened considerably both in the air and on the ground.

While the official spokesman gave no breakdown of the figures, military observers said the losses for the first 90 days of this year ran higher than the first 90 days when bombings in the north began last year.

One reason for the increase is that the United States is putting more planes over the north. Another is that the Communist anti-aircraft defenses have strengthened and their marksmanship has improved.

One Air Force officer commented: "The North Vietnamese are probably the best anti-aircraft gunners around just now because of all the experience they are getting."

In the fighting, U.S. Air Force B52 bombers pummeled a Viet Cong troop area 90 miles north of Saigon today near the Cambodian border.

Griffin had left South Viet Nam only hours earlier in order to meet with Gov. George Romney and officially accept his appointment to the U.S. Senate seat vacated by the death of Patrick McNamara, a Democrat.

He said information in a number of cases is for somewhat unclear reasons classified.

He criticized the Aid for International Development agency for "lax procedures, inadequate personnel and failure to audit and oversee our program."

He promised a fuller report to be delivered in Michigan in about a week.

Griffin directed the bulk of his criticism at the $370 million commodity import portion of the fiscal year's $640 million over-all foreign aid program in South Viet Nam.

Private importers in Viet Nam, he said, apparently are responsible for "many instances of real abuse."

He said the United States cannot afford "mediocre personnel" in the South Viet Nam aid mission and declared the program must be made more attractive to qualified individuals.

Griffin Claims Aid Is Misused

LANSING (AP) — Senator-designate Robert Griffin, R-Mich., charged today that "mismanagement and misuse of our foreign aid drastically impairs our efforts" to rebuild South Viet Nam.

Griffin had left South Viet Nam only hours earlier in order to meet with Gov. George Romney and officially accept his appointment to the U.S. Senate seat vacated by the death of Patrick McNamara, a Democrat.

He said information in a number of cases is for somewhat unclear reasons classified.

Search For Girl In Pennsylvania Still Lacks Clues

SHADE GAP, Pa. (AP)—Hundreds of volunteers swarmed to the picnic grounds here today to resume the massive search for Peggy Ann Bradnick, a 17-year-old girl feared kidnapped by a mysterious sniper known to residents of this rural area as the "mountain man."

Meanwhile, the state police distributed an artist's sketch of the suspected kidnaper based on information supplied by area residents who said they had seen him.

The search, police said, has failed to uncover a trace of the girl or the masked man who snatched her from a dirt road a quarter-of-a-mile from her home Wednesday shortly after she and her younger sisters and brother left a school bus. A teen-age boy was picked up for questioning but released.

28,000 Less:

State Deer Kill Declines Sharply

LANSING — Deer kills in Michigan in the 1965 firearms season dropped 19 per cent from 1964, according to the final estimate made by the Conservation Department.

Only one in five hunters was successful, compared to one in four in 1964, the department said.

Total kill was 113,000 deer, about 28,000 deer less than the 141,000 taken in 1964.

Estimates were based on the department's postcard survey of some 24,000 licensed hunters.

The breakdown on last season's statewide kill includes 63,400 bucks, about 23,000 off the 1964 total which was the highest in 18 years. Antlerless kill took a smaller dip—49,630 compared with 54,420 the year before.

A big jump in hunter numbers magnified the lower total kill in terms of individual shooting success.

With 592,000 sportsmen afield for the largest turnout ever, about one of every five hunters scored. In 1964, when there were about 43,000 fewer active hunters, one of every four license holders took home a deer.

Best shooting success was recorded in the Upper Peninsula where 27 per cent of the hunters filled their licenses. In the northern half of Lower Michigan, the figure was 19 per cent and in the southern half, 11 per cent.

The northern Lower Peninsula accounted for the largest share of last season's kill as 37,860 bucks and 32,190 antlerless animals were bagged in that region. The total figure was down about 25,000 from 1964.

Above the Straits, last season's take included 17,450 bucks and 15,540 antlerless deer, a drop of some 4,700 animals from the year before. In southern Michigan hunters took 8,090 bucks and set a new record for the fifth straight year. Another 1,900 antlerless deer were killed in 17 of the region's crop-damage areas.

Latest Department returns indicate that Michigan deer hunters bought 609,900 firearm licenses last year to eclipse the 1964 all-time high by 49,000.

First National Changes Name

John L. Greene, executive vice president of the First National Bank today announced that the bank stockholders have voted to change the corporate title of the bank to First National Bank & Trust Co. The bank's board of directors, acting upon the stockholder's vote, have recommended the name change effective immediately.

The addition of "Trust Company" to the bank's corporate title identifies First National as a bank with full trust powers, authorized by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to act as trustee, executor, administrator, registrar of stocks and bonds and guardian of estates.

Trust powers were extended First National in 1961 and the bank has been providing trust services since that time. The Trust Department is under the direction of Arne Maki, vice president and cashier, who assumed the additional title of trust officer following the granting of trust powers to the bank.

Leonard Cholger Dies Of Injuries In Farm Mishap

A 54-year-old man died in a farm field Friday afternoon, apparently of injuries suffered when he was run over by a tractor he was driving and grain drill it was pulling.

Dead is Leonard George Cholger, Rte. 1, Bark River.

State Police of the Gladstone Post said he was found dead in a field by his wife, Ida, who became concerned when he failed to return home for supper shortly after 6 p. m. The tractor he had been driving was running in circles in the field, she told officers.

Dr. Otto Hult, county medical examiner, was notified. He is expected to complete his report later today.

Leonard G. Cholger was born Feb. 10, 1912, in Escanaba, and was employed as a farmer.

He is survived by his widow, the former Ida Eienhofer; one daughter, Mrs. David (Lois) Nordin, of Escanaba; three grandchildren and one brother, George, of Ford River.

Friends may call at the Anderson Funeral Home from 4 to 9:30 p. m. Sunday. The body will be removed to St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Ford River at 12:30 p. m. Monday where complete funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. with the Rev. Phillip Kuckahn officiating. Burial will be in Gardens of Rest Cemetery.

Happy Wedding:

Fair And Farming In Closer Ties

The inclusion of the U.P. State Fair in the Michigan Department of Agriculture is a "happy wedding" that will benefit farming, the Fair and the public.

This consensus was expressed at a public meeting of the U.P. State Fair Board at the Chamber of Commerce building in Escanaba Friday night, conducted by Mrs. Ruth Butler, Houghton, Board chairman. It was Mrs. Butler who termed the reorganization of state fairs under the Department of Agriculture a "happy wedding."

Mrs. Butler welcomed those who had come to discuss the Fair with the board and to offer suggestions for its improvement.

Representing the Department of Agriculture at the meeting were Dale Ball, director, and Dr. Ralph Morrow, deputy director, both of Lansing.

Inform Public

"Under the reorganization of state government as approved by the Legislature the Fairs in Detroit and Escanaba are now part of our Department," Ball said. There will be no loss of function on the part of the Fair Boards, he added.

"The Agriculture Commission is going to expect that the U.P. State Fair Board will decide policies, just as it has in the past."

Dr. Ralph Morrow, deputy director, who will work with Michigan Fairs, described aims which he hopes will "do a better job of educating our city cousins on the value of agriculture."

"I'm sure that too many times when we go into the well-stocked markets we are inclined to take our food for granted. The general public does not realize the problems of the farmer and the investment that he must make to produce this food," Dr. Morrow noted.

Work Together

"One of the objectives of the fairs should be to help our city cousins better understand how they also benefit when farming is efficient," Dr. Morrow said. Mrs. Butler as chairman of the Fair Board said she believes the Fair as a part of the Department of Agriculture is "a much better arrangement for us" and that "we should be able to do a better job of agricultural education if we work together closely."

Questions relating to horse show classes and a carcass class show for beef were discussed with the Board by interested persons.

Mel Nyquist, Marquette County agricultural agent, and Marianne Cowell, Kipling, asked for changes in classes in 4-H and open class horses and it was suggested that they continue the discussion with Fair Manager Perras.

Free Attractions

Perras in response to other questions reported that:

Until it is possible to have a freezer at the Fairgrounds it is not feasible to have a carcass class beef show. The freezer is coming and with it the show, he added.

There will be an admission charge to the U.P. Fairgrounds this year — but everyone under 14 years of age can enter free, Perras pointed out.

The admission price is 50 cents but this includes the privilege of free parking on the grounds, and many free grandstand attractions for young and old. "People are going to get more for their money," he declared.

"The Fair needs money too, and the admission charge is the only way we can turn," he said. The free attractions this year will include a fireworks spectacular to be presented after the thrill show on Sunday night.

New Building

Fair buildings are being painted and readied for the exposition, he reported. Bids have been let and construction is to be started in a couple of weeks on new 4-H barn, to be completed in time for the Fair.

Perras reported that in conversations with Rep. Einar Erlandson there is assurance the Legislature will approve about $220,000 for a new exhibition building for the U.P. State Fair. The present building is inadequate and portions have been condemned.

The Legislature is not inclined, however, to have the state participate in the cost of structure upwards of $527,000.

MADISON PROPOSES BILL OF RIGHTS; 3RD GREAT DOCUMENT IN JUST 13 YEARS

The place: the House of Representatives during the first session of the First Congress. The date: Sept. 9, 1789. The Congressman from Virginia James Madison is proposing additions be made to the Constitution. The result: the Bill of Rights.

They consist of only 10 short paragraphs, but what they say creates a whole way of life—freedom of speech, press, religion; right to petition, speedy trial, witnesses, counsel; right to security against unreasonable search and seizure.

How many of us ever stop to think of the debt we owe that small group of men, who in just 13 years, between 1776 and 1789, wrote the three great documents—the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights—which have contributed so much to our heritage and will continue to serve our children and our children's children.

Senator Griffin

The ouster of former Gov. G. Mennen Williams and Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanagh notwithstanding, Gov. George Romney's appointment of Congressman Robert P. Griffin to the vacancy in the U.S. Senate was a logical move. Rep. Griffin will occupy the seat of Senator Patrick V. McNamara, who died last month after declaring that he would not seek re-election.

That declaration led to a Democratic primary contest that pits Williams, the six-time former governor, against Cavanagh, a relative youngster who has enjoyed a meteoric rise in Michigan politics. The clash between these two colorful figures promises to be one of the most interesting races in recent partisan politics in Michigan.

Griffin also will face primary opposition—from Deane Baker, a Grand Rapids businessman who was born in Marquette but lived there only briefly. Griffin is the "preferred" Republican candidate for the senatorial nomination, and Baker is regarded as providing only token opposition. As the incumbent senator, Griffin now will hold an insurmountable edge over Baker.

Williams' charge that Griffin is not a "moderate Republican" and Cavanagh's accusation that the appointment was made "on the basis of political expediency" are not realistic. Regarding the former, there is nothing in his record to indicate that he is an arch-conservative. Regarding the latter, any unbiased appraisal would place Griffin at the head of the list of possible appointment choices open to the Governor.

Beyond that, Griffin is well-qualified to serve as U.S. senator. Only 42 years old, he is now serving his fifth consecutive term in the House of Representatives, where he is a member of the Committee on Education and Labor, the Committee on Government Operations and the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress. He is the co-author of two landmark pieces of legislation—the Landrum-Griffin Act covering labor-management reform and the National Student Loan Program, which has made it possible for nearly a million students to attend college with the assistance of low interest loans ranging up to $1,000 a year, repayable over a 10-year period after graduation.

Griffin holds two bachelor's degrees and a teacher's certificate from Central Michigan University and a law degree from the University of Michigan, where he was student editor of the Law Review. He practiced law for six years in his home town, Traverse City, before being elected to Congress.

He enlisted in the U.S. Army in World War II and served three years, including 14 months in Europe. A forward observer in field artillery, he received two battle stars.

In 1959 Griffin was named one of the 10 Outstanding Young Men in America by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Democrats are hoping that Griffin's co-authorship of the Landrum-Griffin Act will cripple his chances of winning the general election for the Senate in November. The act was opposed by organized labor, but Griffin believes he will get ballot support from the rank-and-file of the unions. He says union members have learned during the eight years the act has been in effect that it protects their rights. He calls attention to the fact that he is a recipient of the Tom O'Brien Award from the International Society of Skilled Trades for "his sincere efforts on behalf of labor's forgotten man—the union member."

Being the incumbent senator will improve Griffin's election chances. He will be able to use the eminence of the office to gain much more exposure than would be possible otherwise.

Even so, he still will enter the general election as the underdog against either Cavanagh or Williams in a state which has voted heavily Democratic in recent senatorial races. But Griffin is young, attractive, experienced and astute and can be expected to wage a vigorous campaign.

Negro Is Impatient

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — North and South, restless Negroes are trying to break past the barrier of tokenism in the desegregation of schools, jobs and housing. New checks, made here and in the field, reveal no startling new gains.

A civil rights spokesman in the capital says impatience with the small measure of progress is still rising.

In some parts of the country, the Negroes' mood is almost "antipolitical," so disenchanting are they with hearty promises given but largely unfulfilled.

The time has gone when either leaders or rank and file are impressed by appointments of Negroes to high-level federal or other government positions. These symbolic gestures are today taken for granted as overdue and indicative of nothing broadly substantial.

What they dwell upon are such facts as that 90 per cent of all U. S. children still are in totally segregated schools, that housing is still a shackle-and-shanty existence for millions of Negroes, that good jobs are scarce.

There is change, of course. In a state like Alabama, Negroes are turning up on civic boards, the Chamber of Commerce, the medical society. They have jobs in factories, stores, hospitals, even the police force.

One southern white moderate, a businessman, nevertheless argues that too much of this is mere token compliance with new law and the changing times. Says he:

"They put them out in the showcase reception room so people will say 'Well, I see they've integrated.' But often it's a case of one in 500 employees."

The desegregation pace has been admittedly slow, even though a good many southern businessmen say: "We are agreeably surprised how well it has worked out." Newly hired Negroes have found their jobs capably, have fitted in, have been largely accepted by white fellow workers.

Some white southern moderates whose credentials with the Negro community are good do insist, all the same, that tokenism is really not a bad state of affairs at this point in the racial struggle. Says one:

"It's the best medicine we in the Deep South can have—the exposure to tokenism. It gives us a chance to overcome severely segregationist attitudes. If the gains were massive, hostility would be very great."

Plenty of additional desegregation is scheduled in the years just ahead, this man argues. As it takes place, he suggests, attitudes will slowly change for the better.

Not many northern Negro leaders would agree, but some in the South would. More than a few are said to resent the pressures for speed applied here, and there by Dr. Martin Luther King. One source says of these southern leaders:

"They are quite capable of changing things as fast as King or any other human being can do it."

But militancy and growing impatience still govern the Negroes' mood in many places, North and South. Birmingham leaders are pushing against a big steel company for more jobs.

Many southern Negroes are responding eagerly to leader efforts to train them both for voting and for candidate participation, so they can exert greater weight on the job-school-housing front.

In some circles, even in the South, it is fashionable to say, in comment on the urge in many Negroes for quickness on this front: "Today's radical is tomorrow's Uncle Tom."

His Home Town Tries To Help GI

Court-Martial Of Private Barboza

By ROBERT COCHNAR

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(NEA) — The boys and girls danced under crepe paper streamers in the American Legion hall to get a GI out of prison.

As the amplified instruments screeched, Earle Carlsen talked with his colleagues — teachers at Nathan Bishop Junior High School — and with friends and politicians who collected $500 to help correct an alleged miscarriage of military justice.

Gene Barboza would have been pleased. But Gene happened to be 1,600 miles west of Providence that evening, swabbing down the kitchen of the Army's disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Barboza, 19 and a paratrooper, is serving a 20-year sentence for murder.

He's grateful he didn't get the firing squad, because that is the Army's ultimate penalty for killing a man. On the other hand, he may be wondering why he is in jail because all he thought he did was his duty when he fired at a prowler in Santo Domingo.

The young Dominican was killed as he prowled about a U. S. hospital in Santo Domingo last October. There were no eyewitnesses.

There are several questions about the court-martial of Private First Class Barboza and Earle Carlsen and the people who attended the Barboza Defense Fund Dance want the answers.

Carlsen, a 59-year-old physical education teacher at Bishop Junior High, has known thousands of young men since he began teaching 30 years ago.

"I should be a pretty good judge of character by now," the chunky coach says. "And that's why I was so shocked when I read in the paper that Gene had shot somebody in the Dominican Republic and had been sentenced to 20 years at hard labor."

"I know Gene well and I have complete faith in his integrity. I felt that something was wrong and I wanted to find out what it was."

Gene Alan Barboza was a quiet, confident student at Nathan Bishop. He was a well-built, wavy-haired six-footer, an average student and athlete. He tried hard, his teachers recall.

And he had this thing about the paratroopers. Colia, Gene's pretty mother, who works in a Providence mill and has been long separated from her husband, says she "tried to talk Gene out of it, but he wouldn't listen. He quit high school to join the Army."

On Nov. 16, 1964, Gene became Pvt. Gene Barboza, RA 11440047. First it was basic training at Fort Dix, then medical training at Fort Sam Houston, then, airborne school at Fort Benning.

After two weeks at Fort Bragg, N. C., with Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Airborne), 504th Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, he was assigned to the Dominican Republic in June and found himself in the middle of a revolution.

Capt. Phillip Goddard, M.C., his commanding officer, said he was "a very helpful and competent individual" and "an asset to the platoon."

It was hot last October in Santo Domingo and the republic seethed with tension and unrest.

Gene Barboza got his first taste of action when an enlisted man's club was blown up. He rushed to the scene carrying his medical kit.

"There was a lot of smoke and debris all over the place," he recalled, "and a lot of people running out. I ran up and got a few of the people out and lined them up along the sidewalk and started treating them."

The medic treated American soldiers and Dominican citizens.

On Oct. 16, at 9:45 p. m., Juan Francisco Monte de Oca, 20, was shot in front of San Francisco de Asia Hospital. Minutes later he was dead.

The bullet was triggered by Barboza, who had just taken over guard duty.

The young soldier was placed in custody, examined by Dr. Goddard and interrogated by John Smith, a member of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division in Santo Domingo.

Barboza, without counsel although he asked for it, signed a statement admitting he did the shooting because he thought the youth was about to plant, or had planted, a bomb near the hospital.

According to testimony given by investigator Smith at Barboza's court-martial, Barboza repeatedly asked to see Goddard. The exchange:

Defense Counsel: "He asked to see Dr. Goddard, did he not?"

Smith: "Yes sir, he certainly did."

Defense: "There wasn't any question in your mind that he wanted to see Dr. Goddard, is there?"

Smith: "No, sir."

Gene Alan Barboza

Edward Gallogly
His Counsel

Mrs. Celia Barboza
His Mother

Defense: "Before he signed the statement?"

Smith: "No, sir."

Defense: "And that you didn't afford him the opportunity?"

Smith: "No, sir."

The defense counsel, Edward P. Gallogly, former lieutenant governor of Rhode Island, points out that Barboza did not have access to counsel until 22 days after the incident.

On Dec. 6, 1965, at Fort Bragg, the court-martial of Gene Barboza began. Three days later, it was over and the medic was found guilty of unpremeditated murder and transferred to Leavenworth.

Lt. Col. Guy A. Hamlin, staff judge advocate for Gen. Joe Lawrie, commanding general of the 82nd Airborne, in reviewing the court-martial proceedings, did not recommend clemency. His comment on the verdict:

"We still have many Barbozas on the line performing guard duty amidst unfriendly Dominicans. They, like Barboza, have been told to fire only when fired upon."

Barboza's sentence not only punishes Barboza but is a lesson to our other troopers. We want no more unnecessary killing. Although the sentence adjudged is far less than the maximum, I consider it not lenient but entirely appropriate."

Defense Counsel Gallogly and teacher Earle Carlsen disagree.

Ed Gallogly, who once clerked for the chief judge of the U. S. Court of Military Appeals, says there are "serious legal questions in the testimony that have never been decided by the Court of Military Appeals."

"My contention," he says, "is the Army Criminal Investigation Division knew Barboza wanted counsel and then he signed a statement that convicted him and he didn't see a lawyer for 22 days."

Furthermore, the attorney says, the Army apparently did not think it important enough to investigate the background of the dead Dominican nor did it attempt to find out why Monte de Oca happened to be in the hospital area.

The pertinent testimony, Gallogly said, "did Barboza tell you that this man (Monte de Oca) invaded the Command Post?"

Smith: "That's what he told me, sir."

Gallogly: "Was that of significance to you?"

Smith: "Yes, sir."

Gallogly: "Did you make an effort to determine what he was doing there?"

Smith: "No, sir; Barboza said there was no one else there at the time and he (Monte de Oca) was dead."

Therefore, the Army did not know and still does not know if Monte de Oca had a history of guerrilla activities or was an innocent passer-by.

Lt. Col. Jacob Hagopian, executive officer of the defense appellate division of the Army's Judge Advocate General Office in Washington and Barboza's co-defense counsel, assigned himself to the appeal because "I thought it was a significant case."

He added that the defense brief he and Gallogly are preparing for submission to the Board of Review would refer to Escobedo vs. Illinois, the 1964 Supreme Court case which held that persons suspected of criminal acts are automatically entitled to counsel before police interrogations.

Gallogly, in his summation to the court, gave his reasons for defending Gene Barboza: "I know the Barboza family. I have had training in military justice and I have taught international law and international relations and I have had 23 years in the reserve."

"I have an interest in this boy. I have an interest in our country and I have eight sons of my own whom I expect will very soon be called upon to have the privilege of serving as Barboza is serving now."

Later, Gallogly added: "Radiating from this case is a cardinal military principle that any man that you ask to accept the responsibility of being a soldier must have commensurate authority to carry out that responsibility, that he cannot have the single shadow of doubt as to his right to use that authority to carry out that responsibility that you give him."

Barboza's fate is not yet sealed. Though he is today viewing the world from behind Leavenworth bars, he may still be set free. Earle Carlsen and Ed Gallogly are convinced he will be.

After defense and prosecution briefs have been submitted to the Board of Review, expected shortly, oral argument will begin.

If the board reverses the court-martial judgment, Gene Barboza may be released and may once again become the paratrooper he wants to be.

Should the Board sustain the case will be presented to the Court of Military Appeals.

There is still time, Gene Alan Barboza's time.

Ann Landers

218-Pound 'Infant' Runs Moron Husband

Dear Ann Landers: I have a feeling I am on the verge of insanity. I have two major problems. First, a 16-year-old infant son who is 6 feet tall and weighs 218 pounds. The second problem is a 40-year-old moron — my husband.

Last evening I told my son to please straighten up his room. (It was beginning to look like a garbage dump). He started to jump up and down like a three-year-old child and yelled, "I won't. I won't. And you can't make me!" Then he turned around and kicked me in the leg.

I was shocked. When I finally gathered my wits I really gave him a piece of my mind. My husband heard me, came into the room and shouted, "For heaven's sake, Edith. He's only a child."

I told him the "child" is twice as big as I am and I'm sick of his laziness. My husband says I expect too much of the boy and this is why he is rebellious. I'd like your opinion.

Dear Ann: What a peachy-keen start for a thoroughly-messed-up life. A 16-year-old boy who kicks his mother and is then defended by his father needs plenty of help—and fast. Talk to your doctor about some counseling for both babies.

Dear Ann: I need advice on how to break my husband of the habit of throwing his clothes all over the house.

Tom was a bachelor (age 35) when I married him. I thought I knew him very well but I guess this is one thing you never know about a man until you live with him.

Last week I tried an experiment. For six days I left his clothes wherever he dropped them. On the bed posts this morning I counted four pairs of trousers, six shirts, six pairs of shorts and three bath towels. This does not include the stuff hanging on door knobs or thrown behind the bathroom door.

Tom and I read your column every day so please print the reply in the newspaper! P. S.: I adore your answers.—THE CHAMBERMATE

Dear Chamber: This is one answer you won't adore because I'm going to tell you to forget it.

It takes less energy to pick up after a man than it does to try and get him to change a life-long habit.

If you have sons, teach them to put things where they belong and to pick up after themselves so their wives won't have to write to Ann Landers.

Dear Ann Landers: How does one go about telling some good friends that their young son steals?

Every time this couple comes to our home and brings the boy something is missing. One day recently I had left some small change on the kitchen window sill. I know the boy took it because I saw the change when I was preparing the lemonade. The boy entered the kitchen as soon as I left. I returned five minutes later and sure enough—the money was gone. Please advise.—R. B.

Dear R. B.: You haven't told me how old the boy is, and this is important. If he is seven or older, have a private talk with him — and give him another chance. If he continues to take things, you must inform his parents because he needs professional help. If he is under seven, tell his parents at once and suggest counseling.

Ferency Sets Campaign Key

Demos For Local-U.S. Ties

Zolton Ferency, Democratic state chairman and candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, laid out his campaign plans to a meeting of party leaders from Delta, Menominee and Dickinson counties at the House of Ludington Friday night.

Ferency, who has attracted support of the party's leaders and is the certain nominee of the Democrats to oppose Gov. George Romney, will charge that Romney has failed to fit Michigan into the War on Poverty and other federal programs. Ferency will lead the Democrats into deeper commitment in education and welfare programs.

Ferency said that he would set up no campaign organization of his own for his drive for the governorship, as did Neil Stabler, the 1964 Democratic candidate, but would rely on the Democratic county committees and state organization.

War On Poverty Issue
"I know the strengths and weaknesses of the party," said Ferency in an interview "and I'm going to beef it up. The Democrats' best opportunity to elect candidates is to 'use it' emphatically (the Democratic ticket) and vote straight Democratic. We can develop a campaign theme there, associating all parts of government—local, state and federal—working together as a team."

"The criticism that I have of Romney is that he has not performed as he should in the War on Poverty. The governors were written into the law and he has done nothing. There are whole counties where no federal funds have been spent on Project Head Start (a pre-school program).

"The causes in the campaign will include recreation, pollution of waters and air, expansion of higher education including community colleges, properly staffing our mental health facilities and tax reform."

Need U.S. Aid

"The State of Michigan can't clean up its streams by itself but it could with the help of the federal government. Romney testified at the governor conference against federal participation in water pollution control, and he's against federal standards in auto design. A few states acting unilaterally on autos could set auto design by themselves. The auto companies could go to the federal courts and say 'They can't do this to us because they're burdening interstate commerce.'"

"The Democratic Party will recognize the integration of government at the state, local and federal level and Romney has turned his back on it. I'm going to take him on on that one with a full-blown campaign."

Ferency said that his proposals for education will include "compensatory education," which means that a school district which doesn't have local means for good education would have them supplied from outside, and that children most needful of schooling would get better schooling than those who need it less. It's the other way around now, he said, with the neediest getting the poorest schooling.

Mental Health

"Our mental health institutions are still a source of shame. They are understaffed and short of medical case workers, clinical psychologists and others. Attend the Church of Your Choice
GOD'S WORD for a NEW AGE

An old man in Australia holds his Bible with shaking hands. Painstakingly his pointing finger follows along a well-loved passage. In a village in Guatemala an Indian lad reads joyfully from a New Testament written in elementary Spanish. In a rural area of Japan a lively youth group discusses the Scriptures using Bibles printed in their mother tongue.

People like these, and thousands more in every corner of the earth, read Bibles today because of the work of the American Bible Society. Founded on May 8, 1816, the Society's sole object is the widespread circulation of the Scriptures. Now, faced with a worldwide population explosion and mounting literacy, the Society sees an exciting challenge in rededicating itself to its goal: that no matter what his language, whether rich or poor, or where he lives — no man, woman, or literate child should be without the Scriptures.

In our space age of confusion and change, the Bible remains constant. Read and study the Bible faithfully, and attend your church regularly. Hear the word of God — His greatest gift, so freely given.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
